

luxe.

interiors + design®

GOLD LIST EDITION

OFF THE SHELF

CITY LIVING Robert A.M. Stern, Paul L. Whalen, Daniel Lobitz and Michael D. Jones

More than those of nearly any other city in the world, New York City's apartments are part of what defines its architectural history, and the partners at Robert A.M. Stern Architects—Stern, Paul L. Whalen, Daniel Lobitz and Michael D. Jones—have played a significant role in this over the last several decades. This monograph is not just a collection of stunning buildings with beautiful façades and dramatic interiors but also a demonstration of how the team integrated the buildings into the cityscape and defined urban neighborhood settings. monocellpress.com

BRAZIL MODERN Eric Chen

"Brazil is perhaps one of the last—if not the last—great discoveries of 20th-century design," says cofounder of New York's R & Company gallery Zesty Meyers in his introduction to Eric Chen's examination of the South American country's design history. Chen, the curator of design and architecture at Mr. showcases over 400 pieces of modern furniture design from unknowns as well as masters—think Lina Bo Bardi, Oscar Niemeyer and Sérgio Rodrigues—while providing a historical context to Brazilian modernist design. monocellpress.com

HOUSE RULES Deborah Berke

Renowned architect Deborah Berke has eight rules on how to create

WHAT'S IN STORE SHOPS & SHOWROOMS

Whether redesigned, freshly unveiled or showcasing new products, these must-visit New York shopping destinations will leave you feeling inspired. Porcelanosa (202 5th Ave.) turned to the architectural team at Foster + Partners to carve out an 18,000-square-foot space on the hallowed grounds of a protected landmark with breathtaking views of Madison Square Park. Rob Copley and Sean Robin's Studio Van den Akker (979 Third Ave., Suite 1510), shown above, has recently introduced 17 new additions to its celebrated line, joining acid-etched metal tables by Christian Heckscher and a new ceramic tile wall by artist Pamela Sunday. Finally, renowned talent Patricia Urquiola brings her signature aesthetic to Cassina's (155 E. 56th St.) newly redesigned Midtown showroom, leaning on plenty of modern and graphic elements, as well as heritage design, to tell an intriguing story about the future of the brand as it prepares to celebrate its upcoming 90th anniversary.

Whether redesigned, freshly unveiled or showcasing new products, these must-visit New York shopping destinations will leave you feeling inspired. Porcelanosa (202 5th Ave.) turned to the architectural team at Foster + Partners to carve out an 18,000-square foot space on the hallowed grounds of a protected landmark with breathtaking views of Madison Square Park. Rob Copley and Sean Robin's Studio Van den Akker (979 Third Ave., Suite 1510), shown above, has recently introduced 17 new additions to its celebrated line, joining acid-etched metal tables by Christian Heckscher and a new ceramic tile wall by artist Pamela Sunday. Finally, renowned talent Patricia Urquiola brings her signature aesthetic to Cassina's (155 E. 56th St.) newly redesigned Midtown showroom, leaning on plenty of modern and graphic elements, as well as heritage design, to tell an intriguing story about the future of the brand as it prepares to celebrate its upcoming 90th anniversary.