The Walls Do Talk

Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist Alison Lurie breaks from fiction to write The Language of Houses: How Buildings Speak to Us, a book that explores the psychological, social and emotional meanings of virtually every type of structure. It's a fascinating and enlightening read about how man-made structures reflect and affect us all. alisonluriebooks.com

new showrooms, websites and books offer solid design advice for all...and a grand hotel renovation pays tribute to Denver's past

Timeless Elegance

BUILT IN 1915, downtown Denver's historic Colorado National Bank building is considered one of the city's most iconic structures. After a thoughtful and stunning renovation, the building is now the Renaissance Denver Downtown City Center. This eight-story, 230-room, Marriott-owned luxury hotel features a top-notch restaurant, classic bar, high-tech meeting spaces and 16 restored murals painted by Allen Tupper True in 1925. rendendowntown.com

International Design

CHOOSING THE RIGHT MATERIALS for your next renovation may have just gotten a bit tougher—in a good way. European manufacturer Porcelanosa has opened a new showroom in the Denver Design Center that features two kitchens, product samples and chic vignettes that highlight the company's most popular vanities, fixtures, bathroom products, accessories and floor and wall tiles. porcelanosa-usa.com

PURE GOLD

FANS OF SOPHISTICATED, COMFORTABLE AND WELL-PRICED FURNISHINGS and home accessories have a new reason to cheer: Mitchell Gold + Bob Williams just opened a new Denver showroom in the tony Cherry Creek Shopping Center. Celebrating its 25th anniversary this year, the North Carolina-based company will showcase everything from its famous Parisian-style leather club chairs and carefully-curated art to stylish dog beds. Stop in to visit with the knowledgeable staff and sign up for an in-home design consultation for a mere $200 (which can be applied to a purchase of $2,000 or more). mgbwhome.com
